KAISER PROTESTS AGAINST USELESS SLAUGHTER OF MEN IN BATTLES BEFORE WARSAW

Germans to Attack Russians Where Intrenchments are Weaker.

GIVE UP LODZ TO MUSCOVITES

Feldt Ground Which They Took in the First Drive Toward Polish Capital; Miles in West Win Important Position, Long Contested; C. S. Note

By Associated Press

LONDON, Feb. 11.—The situation in the eastern arena of the fighting is occupying the attention of the military authorities in Berlin in very large degree. It is clear that no place or news despatches reaching London from the continent.

According to these Emperor William returned hurriedly to Berlin from Poland and at once held a prolonged military conference, summoning for this purpose many well-known leaders.

According to the correspondents of neutral Danish newspapers, Emperor William views the situation as generally hopeful, but he is described as greatly depressed over the terrible losses in men Germany had to pay for comparatively limited advances against the entrenched Russians.

An account from Warsaw placed the German losses on the Biala and by the Bialka fronts at 15,000 dead. This report is absolutely certain. German military leaders say the Kaiser has protested against this slaughter and that an effort will be made by the German war staff to transfer the fighting to some point where the Russians are less formidable entrenched. The Russian reports of the fighting from the extreme north to the extreme south of the Polish line continue optimistic.

The loss of some ground to the Teutonic allies in Galicia appears to have been offset by what is described as the strategic importance of the loss of the fortress of Przemysl. There is evident that both sides find the fighting among snow-covered passes with only the most precarious connection with sources of supply a warfare in which the results attained are dearly purchased.

In East Prussia the situation is becoming clearer. The Germans have rushed reinforcements there and with these men they expect to be able to stall the Russian advance. The Russians, however, already appear to be in a position threatening Isterburg from which German town the population is reported to have been advised to depart with the present military operations are concluded.

In the western arena of the war the fight for Lodz in recent days has been suspended by the prompt big effort of one side or the other is still delayed pending the advance of more favorable weather.

The situation in the Balkans appears to be crystallizing. Bulgaria will receive a contingent of her German loan within the next few weeks. Romania is finding that Austria Hungary is clamoring for a statement of her attitude. Nevertheless she shows no disposition prematurely to reveal her intention and the Entente powers Great Britain, France and Russia seem to be satisfied that Bulgaria's ultimate action will be on their side.

GERMANS YIELD LODZ TO THE RUSSIAN ARMY.

By Associated Press

PARIS, Feb. 11.—The evacuation of Lodz by the Germans has been confirmed, according to a Petrograd despatch which states that stores, offices, committee and transports are being removed bodily to Kielce.

A tribe who escaped to Czestochowa, the despatch credits, with the statement that the Germans have resumed with redoubled vigor the construction of heavily fortified lines which was suspended six weeks ago.

Lodz, the second city of Poland, was captured by the Germans December 6 when Field Marshal von Hindenburg began his dash for Warsaw. The Russians were driven out of the city only after desperate resistance, according to the reports, although Petrograd contended it was evacuated for strategic reasons.

The Russians were reported yesterday to have assumed the offensive on the Warsaw front in an effort to push back the Germans who are said to have transferred many troops from that region to East Prussia.

USE OF AMERICAN FLAG SYNDICATED WITH CONCERN.

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The United States has warned Great Britain and Germany, respectively, that general use of the American flag by British vessels would be viewed with grave concern here and that the destruction by Germany of any American vessel in the newly described war zone would lead to serious complications.

It became known today that the text of the two notes sent last night to Great Britain and Germany expressed much more emphatically than had been generally known the displeasure of the United States at the use of

PREVAILING PRICE OF CONNELLSVILLE COKE IS TOO LOW

If a Boom Should Come in Iron and Steel Which is Not Unlikely

WHERE WILL LIMIT BE FOUND?

That is to Say Will Demand First Top Production in Pig Iron or Coke? The Labor Supply Another Doubt. Why Last Half Coke Is Higher.

From The Weekly Courier, Pittsburgh, Feb. 11.—Formal notice of the setting of coke at $1.75 has been given by the court in the case of the contract between the Town Hill Connellsville Coke Company and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company. As the coke company had gone into the hands of receivers it was necessary for the receivers to secure the authority of the court to carry out the contract. In some quarters it had been suggested that possibly the court would not sanction the proposed rate on the ground that the market price of $1.75 did not represent a profit to the coke company if there should be lagged in the cost of producing the coke the bond interest and depreciation charges and it was thought possible the contract, which now involves $15,000 to 20,000 tons a month, might come into the market again. Whether coke of similar grade could now be bought at $1.75 for the entire year 1915 is a question. On the one hand the prompt coke market is slightly lower than when the contract was made late in December, while on the other hand the proposed rate of iron and steel trade have materially improved since then. There is little doubt as to early delivery. The $1.50 could be done for the next two or three months, but the second half of the year is another matter entirely, presenting distinct possibilities of much higher prices than $1.75.

Prompt furnace coke under and cast frequently is plecked up at $1.50, though a number of operators never quote below $1.60. The market has shown a steady increase in the weeks past while there is constantly a moderate tonnage of prompt coke available. Foundry coke has shown no fresh developments. The market is quoted as follows:

Contract Furnace.....	$1.70 to $1.80
Contract Furnace (nominal).....	$1.75
Prompt Pounder.....	$2.00 to $2.50
Contract Pounder.....	$2.20 to $2.40

The steel part of the general iron and steel market continues to pick up with under-current increasing and production on the increasing, corresponding measure, while the merchant furnace branch shows no improvement whatever. The subject is beginning to be discussed what would occur in case business should continue to improve, that is, where a limit to expanding production would first be found. When the iron and steel industry is running full for a period of time, like it was in 1905, 1906 and the major portion of 1907, it finds its proper proportion in the different units, but since 1907 there has been an extended period in which no attempt has been made to re-estimate the market. There is every reason to suspect that the proportions have been greatly altered, whereby the limit of productive capacity will be found much sooner than in some other directions. There has been considerable erection of steel finishing mills and of open-hearth steel making furnaces with the abandonment of some Bessemer steel making capacity. There has been the building of some blast furnaces and the reconstruction of others. So, there has been practically no building of new blast furnaces, while some existing ones were operating comfortably in 1906 have since worked out their coal. On the other hand there has been considerable erection of by-product coke ovens. Immigration has been relatively light for years, while since the war it has amounted to very little, and there has been considerable emigration.

As a consequence of all these changes it is recognized that if an attempt were made to operate the iron and steel industry at full capacity, there would be a breaking down in the supply at some point or other while there would be ample capacity in some other point. For example, the iron-making may require 100,000 tons of coke labor, not enough men to operate the ovens so it might be that the supply of ovens might be found insufficient to make coke needed by the blast furnaces. Again, it might be found that there was plenty of coke, but not enough blast furnace capacity to use the coke and make the pig iron needed by the steel works and founders. Or, again, there might be plenty of pig iron but not enough steel making capacity to use it and feed the steel finishing mills. Or, finally, there might be plenty of steel ingots but not enough finishing capacity to put the steel into merchantable form.

On one point nearly all observers are agreed, and that is that the general labor supply would fall before all the coke works, blast furnaces and steel works would be unable to operate. While there are details there are differences of opinion as to whether the coke works or the blast furnaces and steel works would first feel the shortage of labor. Apart from the question of labor supply, the observers who have followed the new construction most closely assert that the steel interests

PITTSBURG BAKERS ADVISE ADVANCE IN BREAD PRICE

Committee Suggests Adding One Cent a Loaf; Master Bakers Must Act on Report.

By Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 11.—Braun, chairman of the price committee of the Western Pennsylvania Master Bakers' Association, announced today that the committee had decided to recommend to the association an increase in the price of bread.

A cent a loaf, he said, would likely be tacked on the present price, making the small loaves 6 cents and the large loaves 10 cents. The warrants will be served to day and hearings will likely be held tonight before Alderman W. D. Colborn.

A number of high school students were arranged before Criminal Lt. B. Smith and Superintendent S. P. Ashe yesterday and the names of 200 Tammer, Steven Staad and A. Spinelli were divulged by them as the dealers who had sold them the cigarettes.

A fourth dealer's name was also given but no prosecution was entered as he convinced the authorities that no cigarettes had been sold to minors with his knowledge or consent.

It seems that a boy clerk in the store had arranged to sell the weeds to the school boys during the proprietor's absence.

Under the law, the boys might have been committed to jail for failure to obey the order of dealers with funds to support them.

Interest in the evangelistic services continues. There were seven contributions to the Union Church last evening.

MERCHANT SUES TO RECOVER DAMAGES IN A LEASE CASE

J. Falk Alleges Wethe Trustees Denied Him a Storeroom.

CONTRACTING COMPANY LOSES

William M. Bates and First National Bank are Awarded Big Sum After Long Trial; Dispute Over a Cow Aired Before Judge Van Swearingen.

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 11.—Alleging that no section of a store room in the Wethe building, Pittsburgh street, Connellsville, had been denied him after he had leased it, H. J. Falk, through his attorneys, Byrne & Byrne filed a suit in common pleas court to recover $8,151 from William Wethe, Charles Wethe and Henry Wethe, trustees. Falk declares that October 29, 1914, he leased the storeroom from the defendants through their agent, Charles Wethe, the term of the lease to begin November 1, 1914 and to expire October 31, 1916, with the privilege of extension for one year. Falk in his statement of claim says that he came to New York and other cities and purchased men's merchandise bought clothing and fixtures in Connellsville. When the goods arrived, Falk alleges he was denied possession of the room and he was compelled to secure another room in which to dispose of the stock of merchandise he purchased. He itemizes his losses as follows: Shaving, $25.75; traveling expenses, $10.00; rent of store room to dispose of goods purchased, $35.30; loss on sale of merchandise, $100; loss of time and employment, $300; loss of lease, $2,000; and loss of credit, $5,000.

William M. Bates and the First National Bank of Connellsville were awarded a verdict of $27,749.81 in the regular trial of the Construction Company into yesterday. The action was to recover more than $22,000 in construction work and materials used in the building of the Western Maryland Railroad from Connellsville to Ohiopyle. The charter company having broken the contract for that section of the road to Mr. Bates. The defense admitted that there was about $12,000 due Bates. This case occupied nine days in Judge Van Swearingen's court, and was the longest on trial in the last five years. The case of Washington Herd against the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company tried in January, 1914, took 10 days for trial.

Twenty-five dollars was awarded Mrs. Annie Ross of South Connellsville by a jury in Judge Van Swearingen's court yesterday against Mrs. Susanna Danderson of Brookfield Township, for an alleged breach of contract. Mrs. Ross on February 11, 1914 purchased a cow from Mrs. Danderson, which Mrs. Ross testified proved to be good for nothing.

Mrs. Ross declared the cow was blind, would not give any milk, was not fresh in March and Mrs. Danderson told her, and finally when she was unable to sell it or give it away, she killed it, but after cooking the meat all day found it too tough to eat.

Mrs. Danderson said what she doesn't know about cows, isn't worth knowing, and said that the cow was an excellent one, gave a gallon and a half of milk a day and was not blind.

"She couldn't see, could she?" asked Attorney George Patterson, who conducted Mrs. Ross' case.

"She could see me," replied Mrs. Danderson.

"Did she say anything to you?" Tatterson asked.

"Yes, she said 'Meow!'"

It was alleged by Mrs. Ross that Mrs. Danderson promised to return her money if the cow was not represented when purchased, and she said that she refused to do that. Attorney S. R. Goldsmith represented Mrs. Danderson. The case occupied three hours in court and from the time the case was opened until Judge Van Swearingen began his charge to the jury, there was a great interest in the trial, and spectators were present throughout.

Judge Umbel in common pleas court this forenoon sustained a motion for a competency hearing in the case of Andy Lepotsky for $20,000 for personal injuries against the Oliver & Snyder Steel company for injuries received in the Oliver No. 3 mine May 8, 1913. The motion for a competency hearing was presented to the court late yesterday by Attorney J. G. Carroll and was argued this morning. Attorney Carroll held that the company was not responsible for the boy's injuries for the reason that he was working under the direction of the mine foreman, a state official in charge of the mine.

have increased their steel making and therefore pig iron requirements, capacity of the blast furnaces capacity, so that before the steel interests got to the point of operating their steel departments full they would be short of pig iron. Whether they could secure sufficient pig iron from merchant furnace interests is the question. While at present the merchant furnace capacity of the country is now idle, the capacity of the idle furnaces, say 6,000,000 tons a year, is not large relative to the steel industry, which deals in much larger figures. If the furnaces, both steel works and merchant, were called upon to run full, there is certainly a very serious question whether enough coke could be found, irrespective of price, to operate them. It is quite certain that before the last 15 or 20 per cent of the coke was sold prices would be at a fancy level.

The local pig iron market has continued quiet. Current quotations are, Bessemer, $13.50; basic, $12.50; No. 2 foundry, $12.75 to $12.75; malleable, $12.75; gray forge, $12.50 to $12.75; Valley furnaces, 35 cents higher delivered Pittsburgh.

MOUNT PLEASANT

AN EASY WAY TO END CATARRH FOREVER

NEW YORK CENTRAL WINS

Special to The Courier.
MOUNT PLEASANT, Feb. 11.—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cunningham, who live at Cumberland Mills, Tarentum, and were married by Rev. Shirley, pastor of St. Mark's Reformed Church, returned to the bride's home Tuesday evening. The bride, who was Alice Louise Walsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Walsh of Stauffer, started for her work as usual on Tuesday morning and instead of going to work met Harry Cunningham at the West Penn car and from here they went to Connellsville where they took the train for Cumberland. Mr. Cunningham is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Cunningham of Main Street.

George Cunningham, Warden, longer surprised the members of the fire department by having a general house cleaning in the rooms of the municipal building yesterday afternoon. The firemen formerly employed a janitor, but when their money began getting low in the treasury and there seemed no hope of ever having any more, they laid off the janitor.

The Men's Bible Conference Class of the Methodist Episcopal Church will attend a revival meeting at the mission on Shupe street next Friday evening and all members are requested to meet at W. U. Stark's store in the East End at 7.15.

Mrs. Mary and Father Galley entertained their fellow members of the Golden Gleamers club of the M. E. Sunday school at the home of the former on West Washington street on Tuesday evening.

The Mount Pleasant Independents played off a tie game of last Friday evening with the Southdale A. C. at the State Armory last evening when they defeated the mby a score of 41 to 23. Lineup:

PEIRYOPOLIS.

PEIRYOPOLIS, Feb. 11.—The W. C. T. U. met in regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Albert Reynolds on Wednesday afternoon. There were 25 members and three visitors present.

At the meeting the election of the county executive committee members for held at Uniontown, at which places were outlined for work along many lines. A report was also made of the social recently held at the home of Mrs. Kammerer, showing that about $15 was added to the treasury and several names to the membership list.

A committee was appointed to arrange for a Frances Willard memorial program to be given in the Christ Church on Sunday afternoon, February 21. Mrs. Odleay gave a report of the work still being done by the relief committee, many families being assisted. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Reynolds.

Mrs. Thompson of Star Junction was a visitor in town yesterday.

Mrs. Patterson of Vanderbilt attended the W. C. T. U. meeting yesterday.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Christian Church met in the church parlor for work yesterday.

Mrs. Joseph Carr of Star Junction was a caller in town yesterday.

Revival services in the Methodist Episcopal Church are well attended. Much interest is manifested.

Simple Home Treatment Destroys Germs of this Dangerous Disease.

The reason why so many people who suffer from catarrh never seem to get cured is that they are continually seeking the momentary relief of sprays, douching, greasy creams, ointments, etc. Such things do open up the swollen nostrils and clear the head temporarily, besides stopping for a while the disgusting blowing, hacking, spitting and choking, but they never cure. To drive out catarrh for good you have got to get down to its real cause. Catarrh is a disease. The air is always full of catarrhal germs thrown off by one person and absorbed by another and when the system does fail to throw off such germs they find permanent lodgement in the nose, throat and head and multiply rapidly.

The germs of catarrh can be best destroyed by inhaling the pure medicated air of Hyomeal (pronounced High-o-mee). This splendid and powerful combination of oil of Eucalyptus with other healing agents has a wonderful germicidal quality. You can blow air into your nose, throat and lungs by means of a small hand rubber blower which A. A. Clarke and other leading druggists here in Connellsville and vicinity supply with every treatment. This medicated air is certain death to the germs of catarrh and drives them completely out of your system and when the germs are destroyed the catarrh with all its disagreeable symptoms will stop. Even two or three minutes use will give refreshing relief which you will use it twice or three times a day for a few weeks. It will completely banish catarrh and every symptom of catarrh. As Hyomeal is pleasant to breath and is always sold by druggists everywhere with positive guarantee of successful results, no money back, surely no catarrhal sufferer should go long before trying this simple home remedy.—Adv.

PRACTICAL PRESCRIPTION AGAINST STOMACH ACIDITY

Nine-tenths of all cases of stomach trouble nowadays are caused by too much acid. In the beginning the stomach itself is not diseased but if this acid condition is allowed to continue, the acid is very likely to eat into the stomach walls and produce stomach ulcers which may render a radical surgical operation necessary even to prolong life. Therefore, an acid stomach is really a dangerous condition and should be treated seriously. It is utterly useless to take poppies and ordinary stomach sedatives. The excess acid or stomach hyperacidity must be neutralized by the administration of an efficient antacid. For this purpose the best remedy is to dissolve a magnesia tablet in ten spoonfuls of water in a fourth of a glass of water after each meal. Larger quantities may be used if necessary as it is absolutely harmless. Be sure to ask your druggist for the bisubstituted magnesia as other forms of magnesia make effective mouth washes but they have not the same action on the stomach as the bisubstituted.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Courtney were shopping in Connellsville yesterday.

FIX ROAD WAGES

Somerset Township Auditors Say $1.50 a Day Is Fair Pay.

SOMERSET, Feb. 11.—The auditors of Ogle township, Somerset county, have established a precedent in this section of the state by setting the wage rate for work on the township roads, this action being taken on the advice of their attorney, although it had hitherto been the custom of the road supervisors to set the scale. The supervisors declare they cannot get able men at that price and they have taken the matter up with their attorney at Somers. The question of the meeting of the supervisors of the county, which will be held in Somers next month. The Ogle township auditors decided that $1.50 for a day of 10 hours is the proper figure to be paid for work on the roads of that township this year.

The action of the auditors may open up a question that cannot be determined without recourse to the courts.

On many occasions township auditors have appeared in the quarter sessions of the county court to determine the capacity of defendants on charges that they had failed to keep the roads in the proper condition. So far as we have learned the supervisors never put up the plea that they would not be sure help in doing the work but often referred to the condition of the township treasuries for their failure to comply with the provisions of the road laws. Since the auditors have taken to the idea that they have a right to set the wage rate, supervisors now see a loophole through which they may escape conviction in the courts when confronted by charges of having failed to do their duty. They may merely put up the plea that they were unable to secure men to do the work at the wage scale established by the township auditors.

AN ESCORT FOR A LADY

Country Maid, Afraid of Pittsburgh After Dark, Gets One at Hotel.

Pittsburgh's reputation for being a real city was given an awful jolt last night when a young woman, fresh from the suburbs of California, Pennsylvania, fled to the office of the Pitt Hotel and requested Clerks Harry Stewart and Ernest Shirley for assistance. She had arrived in town during the day and wished to attend a performance at a local theater.

She informed the clerks that she would like them to furnish her with an escort. The request was so unusual that a reason was demanded and she handed one straight from the shoulder when she replied:

"Well, down home I was told that a woman was not allowed on the streets of Pittsburgh without an escort after 8 in the evening."

Roy Kaufmann, a bellboy, was assigned to do the escorting.

CORE SUPPLY AND PRICES.

The boom in steel has not arrived, but it seems to be far enough on its way to provoke comment in trade circles on the preparedness of the manufacturers of coke and pig iron to meet a demand for these constituent materials approximating steel plant capacity. The question is asked whether the limit to expanding production would first be found in case demand for steel rose to record proportions. Would there be a shortage in coke, pig iron or semi-finished forms of steel?

We do not feel able to speak for the steel and iron trade, but it is a matter of common knowledge that the supply of Connellsville's coke is relatively speaking limited. Theoretically, the 23,000 coke ovens of the region should produce 612,000 tons of coke weekly.

Practically, it is a fact that they never turned out over 475,000 tons. Some of them are out of commission and not all of the remainder are all the time in shape for operation. During the boom of 1913, when every available oven was being worked, 150,000 tons weekly was the limit of coke region production. There was, however, a scarcity of men during that period.

The Connellsville coke region never put out exceeding 20,000,000 tons of coke annually. This is slightly less than an average of 400,000 tons per week. It is probably the ordinary capacity of the region in its present condition. With some patching and pulling together this might be increased to 150,000 tons, but it would require a little time to get the ovens and men ready.

It sometimes takes nearly as long for a contractor to present his detailed claim in court and defend it if it did him to do the work.

The $20,000 damage suit against a Connellsville region coke company for the loss of a boy's arm suggests that possibly the Workmen's Compensation law may prove cheaper.

The reason of freak legislation is on.

Connellsville ministers do not believe in "cheap revivals." They seek to save sinners not to make a passing show.

Connellsville citizens grow to be a ripe old age. The coke smoke is not an unhealthy as it looks. It is a protection against some forms of contagion.

Mondith is booked for the electric chair. His swift and terrible fate should be a solemn warning to reckless and brutal men who bathe their passions in blood and expect no severe punishment by reason of an indifferent public conscience.

Anti-smoke ordinances are encouraging to the crushed coke trade.

The locomotive works are经历ing a larger share of the returning price than their neighbors at the car shops. This is probably explained by the fact that steel cars do not wear out as fast as the old wooden ones.

SLEIGHING

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Swash."

Sleighing was a winter sport which flourished exceedingly twenty-five years ago, and threw a gentle glamour over winter, which cannot be imitated by modern devices.

Nothing mitigated the old-fashioned, shapenough winter so much for the American young man of 1890 as the desire to look handsome and gay. He used to rock himself and his partner girl into a sort of little sleigh built for one and a half persons, and to glide swiftly out into the white mantled solitude, driving with one hand and spreading a broad layer of bills and diehahell made through the land. Right after a heavy snow in the old-fashioned winter the sale of engagement rings increased one hundred percent.

Those happy days are past, however. The sleigh rests upside down in the bayloft under a thick deposit of dust, and the sweet chorus of jingling sleigh bells on a cold January evening has given way to the hoarse and savage outcry of the man who is trying to crank an automobile fast enough to heat it up to the starting point.

Those days have given way to the barge, to the automobile and the climate. It is not necessary to drive at 6 A. M. and thaw out a pump in order to feed an automobile, and the automobile is not needed for this, and if he should succeed in changing the government of his city and choosing himself to run it single-handed and alone, he will have convinced some of his old companions that there's something in the Progressive business after all.

President Wilson often gets an extra session of Congress in case the Ship Purchase bill fails. It will not be worth while for President Wilson to urge his leadership bill in an extra session. The new Congress will not pass it. Leader Kitchell has already declared against it. The President had better abandon this bill as a bad job, and hie himself to his office as a leader if possible, but a horse not at all.

Judge Dayton is to have the hook. A Connellsville citizen is making a noble effort to prevent the water company from turning off his water because he won't pay his water bill, and in his efforts he goes to the top of the mountain and shout sympathy of the city administration. However, unless something else is done we shudder to think what a bill that meter will run up.

Free gas is not what it used to be.

The Legislative Reference Bureau is doing some good work at Harrisburg, and it remains for the Legislature to finish it. The bureau has codified the borough laws and the laws on taxation, carefully eliminating ob-

He becomes slightly snared on sledding and begins to betray a feverish interest in non-solid tires.

Climate seems to have broken down and surrendered a good deal in the last quarter century. After the devoted adherent to the graceful and intoxicating sleigh has waited until February to use it and has then had the nerve to go through four inches of unbroken snow, he becomes slightly snared on sledding and begins to betray a feverish interest in non-solid tires.

The automobile now holds the young people of America through the land, and while the industries now lay eggs in the straw-filled bottom of the sleighs of our ancestors, the automobile is not as romantic as the sleigh, but it has one great advantage. The small boy cannot hitch a sled to the back of it and travel behind for ten miles, drinking eagerly in words intended for one set of ears alone.

ANOTHER CITIZEN OBTAINS AID FOR KIDNEY TROUBLE

J. W. McCoy of 200 Mary Street, South Cumberland, Gives Inter-State Doctors Commendation.

HE SUFFERED FOR TWO YEARS

Treated Formerly With Other Doctors and Took Many Remedies Without Relief.

There is a multitude of kidney sufferers in every community and the majority of these fit themselves drift along until their condition becomes serious. Most of these cases if treated in time would rapidly respond to treatment and cause little future trouble. It is the old story of the patient, "Then comes the doctor of no use." Then comes the doctor with various physicians or takes remedies he believes in and gets no results. Little can be said of this sort of case for the sufferer has tried to find relief and failed.

Mr. J. W. McCoy of 200 Mary St., South Cumberland, Md., in the following statement relates his search for relief and how finally found it:

"I have been troubled with my kidneys for the last two years which annoyed me very much. I had pains in my back, felt run down and was losing energy and ambition."

"During this period of time I treated with a number of doctors and took lots of various kinds of medicines but with very little result. Then I went to the Inter-State Doctors at their Cumberland Institute. I now feel fine in all ways and wish to recommend other ailing people to go to the Inter-State Doctor if they want rapid results at the least cost."

The above needs no explanation to other kidney sufferers and Mr. McCoy tells the old story of relief given him after other systems of medicine had failed to make good.

The Inter-State Doctors are making a special offer to the sick and ailing.

Connellsville and vicinity, the offering general medical treatment, free consultation and free treatment except for bare cost of medicine and their distribution until February 15th, 1915. This does not mean just free treatment until then but until well regardless of time or till we start treatment before that date. The Inter-State Doctors Connellsville Institute is located on the second floor of the Citizens National Bank Building, corner Pittsburg and Apple streets, opposite the Aaron Furniture store. Their office hours are from 9 A. M. until 12 noon; 1:30, to 5 P. M. and 6 to 8 evening daily. Sunday from 9 A. M. to 12 noon only.—Ad.

RAILROAD TONNAGE BETTER AND EXPORT BUSINESS TO ALBEE HEAVY.

IRON STOCKS LOW.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—The American Metal Market and Daily Iron & Steel Report will review the steel and iron situation tomorrow as follows:

February was the month which would show whether the increase in demand for steel products that developed December 1st was going to prove merely a flash, one of the semi-annual spurts with which the steel trade has lately become familiar, or was going to prove to be the beginning of a prolonged swell. The testimony of steel order books thus far in the month is that the latter alternative is going to prove to be the correct one.

There is no lack of iron, but in Germany make a very favorable comparison with the past. In actual orders for shipment the railroad tonnage is not heavy, but it is heavier than in months while the general domestic demand shows an increase, and the export bookings have been particularly favorable.

Last week's bookings of the Steel Corporation for export

totaled no less than 56,000 tons, the products ranging from 2,000 tons of Southern pig iron to 30,000 galvanized sheet-iron packings for India. Exports of excellent quality medicine, by simply mixing it at home with one pint of granulated sugar and  $\frac{1}{2}$  pint of water. It makes a whole family supply, as much as would ordinarily cost.

Most persons neglect a cough or cold for the principal reason that they either don't think it is serious enough to go to a doctor, or don't know what good medicine to buy at a drug store, and is so pleasant that children like to take it and adults can be given them with perfect safety as it positively contains no chloroform, opium, morphine, or other narcotics, as do most cough mixtures.

No risk whatever is run in buying this remedy, as Graham &

She came directly toward the young man, her small, gloved hand extended. Her eyes were looking into his with an intensity that disconcerted him. There was no smile on her lips. It was as if she regarded this moment as a pronounced crisis.

Frederic mumbled something faintly, being glad to see her, and felt his face burn under her steady gaze. His father came forward.

"Yes; this is Frederic, my dear," he said, without a trace of warmth in his voice. As she withdrew her hand from Frederic's grasp, James Brood extended his. "How are you, Frederic?"

"Quite well, sir."

They shook hands in the most perfunctory manner.

"I need not tell how you are, to thine," said the son, after an instant's hesitation. "You never looked better, sir."

"Thank you. I am well. Ah, Mrs. Desmond! It is good to be home again with you all. My dear, permit me to introduce Mrs. John Desmond. You have heard me speak of my old comrades and—"

"I have heard you speak of Mr. Desmond a thousand times," said his wife. These may have been shades of emphasis on the prefix, but it was so slight that no one remarked it save the widow of John Desmond, who had joined the group.

"Will you go to your room at once, Mrs. Brood?" asked Mrs. Desmond. The new mistress of the house had not offered to shake hands with her, as James Brood had done. She had moved closer to Frederic and was smiling in a rather shy, pleading way, in direct contrast to his manner of the moment before. The smile was for her stepson. She barely glared at Mrs. Desmond.

"Thank you, no. I see a nice big fire and—oh, I have been so cold!" She shivered very prettily.

"Come!" cried her husband. "That's just the thing. No one speaks as they moved toward the library. "We must to have this out," he added dryly, with a faint smile on his lips.

His wife laid her hand on Frederic's arm. "It is cold outside, Frederic," she said; "very cold. I am not accustomed to the cold."

He was prepared to dislike her. He was determined that his hand should be against her in the conflict that was ing the old place. Later on I shall take you up to my secret hiding place as they say in books. Ranjab will have the rooms in order by this evening. Where is your daughter, Mrs. Desmond?"

"She is at work on the catalogue, Mr. Brood, in the jade-room. In your last letter you instructed her to finish that."

"But this is a holiday, Mrs. Desmond," said he, frowning. "Jones, will you ask Miss Lydia to join us for tea half past four?"

"You will adore Lydia," said Frederic to Mrs. Brood.

Apparently she did not hear him, for she gave no sign. She was looking about the room with eyes that seemed to take in everything.

"I am sure I shall be very happy in this dear old house," she said quietly. "Your own mother must have loved it, Frederic."

"Thank you. I am well. Ah, Mrs. Desmond! It is good to be home again with you all. My dear, permit me to introduce Mrs. John Desmond. You have heard me speak of my old comrades and—"

He was prepared to dislike her. He was determined that his hand should be against her in the conflict that was head slightly, although one could not have been sure.

"And as charming as she is attractive, Frederic," he said, with a faint flush of the enthusiasm he suppressed.

"Who is she?" asked his son, with an intensity that disconcerted him. He seemed to be fixating the bluntness of his eager question.

"Who is she?" repeated his father, raising his eyebrows slightly. "She is Mrs. James Brood."

"I beg your pardon," stammered Frederic. "I didn't mean to put it in that way. Who was she? Where did you meet her and—Oh, I want to know all there is to tell, father. I've heard nothing. I am naturally curious."

Brood stopped him with a gesture.

"She was Yvonne Lostrange, before we were married—Mademoiselle Lostrange. We met some time ago at the house of a mutual friend in Paris. I assure you, her references are all that could be desired." His tone was sarcastic.

Frederic flushed. "I'm sorry I asked the questions, sir," he said, stiffly.

Brood suddenly laughed, a quiet laugh that had some trace of humor and a touch of compunction in it. "I beg your pardon, Frederic. Come up to my room and smoke a cigar with me while I'm changing. I'll tell you about her. She is wonderful."

To his own surprise, and to Frederic's astonishment, he linked his arm in the young man's and started toward the hall. Afterward Brood was to wonder even more than he wondered then what it was that created the sudden desire to alone for the hurt look he had brought to the eyes of Matilda's son—and the odd longing to touch his arm gently.

CHAPTER IV.

In the Jade-Room.

Lydia met Brood and Frederic at the top of the stairs. She had received the message through Jones and was on her way to dress for tea. The master of the house greeted her most cordially. He was very fond of

"But of course this was her home, was it not?"

"I don't know," said Frederic, uncomfortably. "I suppose so. I came here a few years ago and—"

"But even though you never knew her, there must still be something here that—that—how shall I say it? I mean, you must feel that she and you were here together years and years ago. One may never have seen his mother, yet he can always feel her. There is something—shall I say it is spiritual—in—"

Her husband broke in upon these unwelcome reflections. His voice was curiously harsh.

"Mrs. Desmond is waiting. Yvonne."

She drew herself up. "Are you in such great haste, Mrs. Desmond?" she asked in a voice that cut like a knife.

Instinctively, she glanced at Frederic's face. She saw the muscles of the jaw harden and an angry light leap into his eyes. Instantly her arrows fell away. "I beg your pardon, Mrs. Desmond. I have many bad habits. Now will you kindly show me to my room? I prefer that you and not of the servants should be my guide. Au revoir, Frederic. Till tea-time."

Her eyes were sparkling, her husky voice once more full of the appealing quality that could not be denied. The flush of injured pride faded from Mrs. Desmond's brow, and a falut look of surprise crept into her eyes. To her further amazement, the younger woman laid a hand upon her arm and gave it a gentle, friendly pressure.

The men watched them in silence as they left the room, side by side. A moment later they heard the soft laughter of the two women as they mounted the stairs together.

Frederic drew a long breath.

"She's splendid, father," he said, impulsively.

Brood's face was still clouded. He did not respond to the eager tribute.

Father and son faced each other. They were a striking pair, each in his way an example of fine, clean manhood. The father was taller by a couple of inches than the son, and yet Frederic was nearly six feet in his stockings. Both were spare men, erect and gracefully proportioned. Brood gave out the impression of great strength, of steel sinews, of invincible power; Frederic did not suggest physical strength, and yet he was a clean-limbed, well-built fellow. He had a fine head, a slim body whose every movement precluded nervous energy, and a face that denoted temperament of the most pronounced character. It was not a strong face nor was it weak; it represented character without force.

On the other hand, James Brood's son, handsome face, was full of power. His gray eyes were keen, steady, compelling and seldom alight with warmth. His jaw was firm, square, resolute, and the lines that sank heavily into the flesh in his cheeks were put there not by age but by the vital vigor of manhood. His hair was quite gray.

Frederic waited for his father to speak. But James Brood had nothing to say. "She is very attractive, father," said the young man at last, almost wistfully. He did not realize it, but he was groping for sympathy.

Brood had been in the house for a quarter of an hour, after an absence of nearly a year, yet his greeting had been cold, casual, matter-of-fact. Frederic expected little more than that; still he felt in a vague way that now, if never again, the ice of reserve might be broken between them if only for a moment. He was ready and willing to do his part.

Brood was studying the young man's face with an intensity that for the moment disconcerted him. He seemed lost in fixing certain features in his mind's eye, as if his memory had once played him false and should not do so again. It was a habit of Brood's, after prolonged separations, to look for something in the boy's face that he wanted to see and yet dreaded, something that might have escaped him when in daily contact with him. Now, at the end of the rather often scrutiny, he seemed to shake his head slightly, although one could not have been sure.

Ranjab, his Indian servant, slept in an adjoining room, and it was whispered about the house that not even James Brood had viewed its interior. This silent, unapproachable man from the mysterious heart of India, locked
